PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT POLICY

updated on 25 April 2016

Ongoing professional development contributes to the quality of teaching practice and supports student learning. The recognition of professional development experiences values the contribution of teachers to the community. A significant role of teaching associations is to provide quality continuing development for teachers. The Japanese Teachers' Association of NSW (JTAN) will assist Japanese language teachers and their students through the provision and support of quality professional development.

Quality of Professional Development

- All JTAN workshops must focus on a particular standard/s for Proficient teachers as set out in the Australian Professional Standards for Teachers. JTAN identifies the following as features of quality professional development and therefore, JTAN workshops must at the very least satisfy one or more of the following features:
 - ✓ be proactive and visionary leading teachers into new pedagogies and thinking
 - ✓ active learning relating to teachers practice and efficacy
 - ✓ be evidence-based
 - ✓ be responsive to contemporary demands upon member teachers involving teachers in the identification of what they need to learn and the development of the learning experience in which they will be involved
 - ✓ be formative and predictive in finding new ways of enhancing the learning capacities and performance of associations and their members
 - ✓ be ongoing, flexible and reflective, allowing for learning styles, distance, time and isolation
 - ✓ be based on good pedagogy that recognises and values prior learning and skills
 - ✓ be assessed and evaluated to ensure learning outcomes are met for all participants
 - ✓ be purposeful in that it meets identified needs of teachers and is relevant to student learning
 - ✓ be collaborative and engaging of professional networks, professional learning communities, partnerships and experts in the professional development of teachers
 - ✓ be broad in scope and nature to meet the overall needs of teachers and schools
 - ✓ be valued and recognised

Scope

JTAN's professional development is targeted for Proficient teachers. If appropriate, non-JTAN members and schools may also be involved.

Principles

Professional development should be an ongoing process extending from initial teacher preparation across a total teaching career. This includes a reflection on individual teaching practice, planning for ongoing professional growth and participation with colleagues in learning communities. Opportunities for continuous development are readily available to all teachers with involvement in our association activities. All members have equal rights and equal responsibilities in participating in professional development opportunities, irrespective of their schools, gender, religion.

The design and delivery of professional development programs are needs based and reflect the ways in which adults prefer to learn. Evaluation is an integral part of all professional development programs. This can be measured through a variety of means and at different times throughout the professional development activities. Prior learning and skills are recognised, valued and utilised. Clear procedures for planning, monitoring, evaluation and reporting contribute to quality assurance and effectiveness of professional development activities.

Professional development is intended to contribute to the growth of the individual, improve student learning and enhance the standing of the profession within the community.
